

callum&mark

an investigation by

How long is
a piece of string,
and (more importantly)
WHY?

published
randomly, with love

by
callum&mark

portobello&leith
edinburgh

as the act directs

2006

a short book
from tiny acorns mighty stories grow may be reproduced freely

About the Authors
callum&mark have worked together before, in boatbuilding and spoonflattening, but this is their first venture into publishing. One of them can play the violin, but they can both whistle. In addition to writing books, callum directs and produces stop-motion films, and mark is very enthusiastic about small wiggly things.
This book could not have been produced without the help of stars and rain, for producing atomic nuclei heavier than hydrogen, and keeping the rivers filled, respectively.

number 4 of a series

We don't know.

(the end)

page 1